

Derek Hoare:

Derek trained in nursing at the University of Brighton and then completed a PhD in neuroscience at University of Manchester. He is now Associate Professor in Hearing Sciences at the NIHR Nottingham Biomedical Research Centre, University of Nottingham. There he leads a programme of research on tinnitus and hyperacusis with particular interests in developing assessment tools and low-intensity psychological and self-help interventions. Derek is a steering group member of European TINNET clinical working group, and chair of the British Society of Audiology Tinnitus and Hyperacusis Special Interest Group.